

Mary Hoyt Sims, Elementary School Paraeducator

Student learning would be improved with a quiet place to run reading and math groups and to test students without constant noise and interruptions. Right now, we do this work in the hallways and supply closets. Students would be able to focus on their tasks at hand instead of being interrupted by noise and other students.

