Kirkland headed towards new adventures

By Savannah Sousa
Staff Writer

At the end of this year, we will see one of our beloved secretaries leave. ASB secretary Kay Kirkland announced that she is retiring in June. She will be missed so much by the students and staff that she does so much for. Kirkland has some fun plans for after she leaves.

"First, I am going to take my alarm clock into the backyard and shoot it!" Kirkland said. "Then my husband and I have some travel plans for the summer."

I think all of us at Freeman are going to shoot our alarm clock when school's over.

Kirkland said that she knew she was going to retire after the LONG winter we had. She also said that her family and friends had been asking her to consider it and the long winter had convinced that it was time to try something new.

Freeman has had a profound impact in her life.

"It's hard to remember when I wasn't connected to Freeman!" Kirkland said. "My husband and I both graduated from here, our two girls graduated from here and our grandson graduated from here. When I first started work, it was a way to provide health insurance for our family but it became so much more. Students and staff over the years have become personal friends."

On the contrary, Kirkland has made an impact on the staff and students.

"Mrs. Kirkland is like my second mom," Assistant Principal Brian Parisotto said. "My mom lives up in Canada, so Mrs. Kirkland is my school mom."

"I was blessed with the opportunity to be treasurer this year and with it came the gift of working with Kay Kirkland," junior treasurer Marley Pratt said. "Through the year, she has taught me many lessons and I've love learning from her this year but the biggest thing I've learned came from her actions, not her words. Kay taught me this year the importance of serving others. She showed me that by putting yourself last, your able to fully serve others more fully and be more generous with your time and love. Kay lives this out every day and I'm so thankful for that. I'm truly going to miss the love, grace and kindness she showed me every day and the laughs we shared."

It's very clear that Kirkland has touched and blessed the lives of our staff and students. We will miss her so much but wish her the best of luck in her next phase of life.

Response to Spokesman's bullying article

Staff Editorial

March 2, the Spokesman Review ran Eli Francovich's article, "A case study of bullying: Ex-Freeman High School student says peer harassed him for years; alleged bully denies it." Francovich reported on a case of bullying taking place over a period of several years inside our school.

With the release of Francovich's article, our class has decided to dig deeper into the bullying culture in Freeman.

Officer Ron Nye explained the type of bullying that occurs at Freeman includes name calling, ostracizing individuals, rumor spreading and cyber bullying.

"Sometimes it is physical," Nye said. "It's brought on due to individuals posting things about someone or to someone over some form of social media or apps."

According to Nye, bullying in our school doesn't always happen in the classroom but in other areas as well.

"It usually occurs during unstructured and unsupervised time such as between classes, during lunch, in the rest room and in the locker rooms."

In Francovich's article, he alleges that the teachers did nothing to really stop the bullying from happening to the victim.

Nye explained his opinion on what the school's involvement should be when it comes to these types of situations.

"It seems everything is left up to the schools," Nye said. "I think parents need to be held accountable for their kids' actions or inactions instead of the blame being placed upon the school system."

Teachers aren't everywhere in the school at all times, and they can't track everything that's going on outside their classroom, however they try to make their classrooms a safe environment for everyone.

"Cell phones should not be allowed to be used during the school day and teachers should not allow them in their classrooms," Nye said. "This would cut down on some of the cyber bullying that goes on during the day."

The Bagpiper Staff, as well as Officer Nye, have come to the conclusion that we, the students, should stand up for each other.

"I think everyone in the Freeman community needs to stand up for the individual who is being bullied instead of being a bystander," Nye said.

We should report bullying more often when seen or heard, rather than expecting our teachers and our administration to know what has been going on within the school all of the time.

"If you see it happening, do the right thing and say something," Nye said. "It will make Freeman an even better place."

Through doing this, ultimately the culture of bullying within our school would lessen a considerable amount.

Freeman artists show off their masterpieces

By Mariah Lindsley
Staff Writer

Freshman Ada Cashmere and sophomores Jordan Lang and Savannah Lindsley were all selected to represent Freeman at the 2017 NEWESD 101 Regional Art Show, showcasing their art pieces along with several other students from ESD 101. The show captured several different types of art from local young artists.

"I always enjoy to see other students work," art teacher Ken Spiering said. "I also like seeing how my students work stacks up against students from other schools."

Spiering said that Cashmere, Lang and Lindsley were very inspired by the works of art captured by the show and were excited to see their own pieces on display.

"I thought the art show was pretty cool," Lang said. "I've never been to anything like it."

Lindsley also enjoyed the experience.

"It was super inspiring," Lindsley said. "I loved seeing other high school student's pieces and the passion they have for art."

Throughout February and March, Spiering's students worked on their entries for the show.

"I chose to do a clay sculpture of a dragon," Cashmere said. "It's called 'Star Crossed Dreamer,' and I'm really happy about how it turned out. If I were to change one thing about this piece, it would be how I glazed it when I was done."

Cashmere, Lang and Lindsley put in a lot of effort to get their pieces finished and ready to be presented in front of the other artists.

Ada Cashmere's ceramic sculpture "Star Crossed Dreamer."

"I decided to do a block print of someone jumping in midair," Lang said. "The block print is called 'Stutastic,' and I think it turned out really well. If I were to change anything about my piece, I would have chosen a different picture to base my block print off of."

Like Cashmere, Lindsley chose to do a sculpture for the show.

"I made a ceramic sculpture of a sphere with an octopus wrapping around it," Lindsley said. "The piece is called 'Embrace,' and the sphere represents the world with the octopus representing society. If I were to change anything,

I would make the sphere look more like earth and the octopus a darker color."

Spiering chose these three students because their pieces met the criteria for the project, they were successful and their work was original. Spiering was really proud of the students and liked their pieces a lot.

"I thought Savannah's piece was well made," Spiering said. "I admire her determination in the classroom and she was very self-driven when it came to her octopus piece. The movement that Jordan created in the 2-D print was very well done. The piece is very interesting to look at. I marveled at Ada's vision for her sculpture. She was able to create a piece of art that was accurate of what a dragon should look like."

Each of the students placed in the show for their beautiful works of art and received awards. Lang took first place and her piece went off to Olympia. Cashmere took second place and received a $3,000 scholarship. Lindsley received the Avista Award, earning $200 for class supplies.

Overall, Freeman and Spiering are very proud of the three students and wish them luck for the coming year.

Trap teams defends state championship

By Mikayla Ward
Staff Writer

The Freeman Trap team just successfully defend their state title for the second year in a row.

Shooters also participated in individual events. The Buddy Shoot is where competitors are paired of randomly with someone. They are placed at the 27-yard line and are given only 10 shots. If they miss, their partner is able to back them up so this event takes a lot of teamwork. Barron placed first, eighth grader Tyson Delcours placed second, and junior Sam Voves placed fourth.

The Annie Oakley Shoot is where the competitors line up and each of them gets a chance to shoot, if the person before misses the clay, then the person after them gets a chance to shoot it. If that person hits the clay, the person before them is eliminated. In this event, sophomore Nolan Doloughan placed first and senior JJ Iltz took second.

They also competed in the Miss N' Out which is like a game of PIG but for shooting. Freshman Wyatt Sevigny took fourth place.

These athletes have worked very hard to get to where they are, practicing once a week and sometimes even more. Iltz will be attending Chadron State University and participating on the trap team there.

"My coach has helped me improve a lot and he was always encouraging me to do better," Iltz said.

Many of the team agree that their coach Greg Vail had done a great job at helping them and that seeing his reaction when they won state was the highlight of their season.

"He isn't one that is really obvious about showing excitement but when we had won state his reaction was priceless," Voves said.

The team hopes to attend state next season and wants to bring home the trophy for the third time in a row.

Brothers Grimm Spectaculathon another comedic hit

By Riley McLuskie
Staff Writer

The Brothers Grimm Spectaculathon play ran on May 22 and 24.

"It is a hilarious reconstruction of all the original Brother's Grimm fairy tales," said sophomore Mikayla Biornstad who plays narrator 2.

The Brothers Grimm is a composition of all the original fairy tales before they were changed by Disney.

"It's a comedy and we throw in some sarcasm as well," James Jydstrup drama teacher said.

"It's coming along really well, we all know our lines and I think its running smoothly," freshman Maddie Rae said. She's playing Walt.

Just like Spy School, Brothers Grimm was worth the time to see. The drama class put a lot of effort in the play and they did a great job.

The play was filled with lots of audience participation and it was fun to be a part of the play.

"We put a lot of hard work into it and it payed off," student director Meg Neely said.

Rhea Jansen battles to beat cancer

By Grace Holt
Staff Writer

Early this spring, sophomore Rhea Jansen was diagnosed with lymphoma. Her March 16 diagnosis showed she was going to be diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's diffuse large B cell lymphoma, which is a cancer that attacks the immune system and white blood cells.

It all started when the doctor found a non-cancerous tumor located on her thyroid. The doctors thought it was fine, but she and her family insisted the doctors take her whole thyroid out. When the doctors finally took it out, they unexpectedly found a mass of cancerous cells under the tumor.

"This was very unexpected," Jansen explained. "There weren't many signs for something like this to happen. I was in good physical shape and the only sign was that I was getting sick more often than usual."

After finding the tumor, the doctor's plan was to get started right away. That following day, they brought Jansen in for many tests and scans. Then after about a week, they started her on chemotherapy.

"I missed Rhea all the time," sophomore Eva Knight said. "I am amazed by Rhea's courage and drive. She has worked so hard to get where she has and really knows how to battle. She is one of the toughest people I know and I'm so glad she's back and healthy."

She is currently finishing out the school year coming to school and doing as much as she can. She's started physical therapy a couple days a week and is now back playing volleyball again. She is doing a lot better and is looking forward to continue her old life and being able to play volleyball full time again.

Principal Jim Straw has been battling his own cancer this year. The Scotties were excited to have him healthy enough to throw out the first pitch at our District championship game versus the Deep Park Stags. Accompanied by daughters Kayla and Alisha Straw, the crowd was inspired to see Straw in such good health. His pitch made it to coach Chad Ripke's glove with ease. We can't wait to welcome him back next year.

Baseball's third-place finish caps off great run

By Chad Ripke
Baseball Coach

The baseball team finished 22-3 and third in state. For these seniors, they finished their career with an 82-18 record (58-2 in league) over their 4-year span. They were part of the most successful baseball teams and players to ever put on the uniform here at Freeman. 4 League titles, 3 district titles (they didn't play a district tournament their freshman year), 3 regional titles, 4 trips to the state playoffs.

As freshmen, they lost in the first round to Naches 1-0, Naches went on to win a state championship that year. As sophomores they took fourth in state, as juniors they took third in state, and this year third again. Getting to one final four is hard and difficult process, but to do it 3 times in a row is a heck of a feat by this team and these seniors.

The team was also named the Academic State Champs for the second year in a row. We placed 8 kids on the NEA All League teams. Co-MVP's – senior McKabe Cottrell and junior Desmond Parisotto, 1st team Catcher – junior Konner Freudenthal, 1st team 1st Base – senior Simon Rooney, 1st team Shortstop – senior JT Neely, 1st team Outfield – junior Michael Coumont, 2nd team Pitcher – senior Koby Kent, and 2nd team Outfield – senior Chance Halstead.

Junior Isabelle Miller had a combined score of 179 (89, 90) after two days at the 1B/2B/1A state golf championship. She finished tying for 12th place with Lakeside's Molly Connolley, capping off a strong year for Miller.

Simmerman, Gady girls end season at state

Courtesy of Russ Mitchell

Sophomore Andy Simmerman finished 8th at state this season, losing his final match to Tonasket's Caleb Hardesty (6-0, 6-1). Krystal and Kendra Gady competed in the 1B/2B/1A girls' doubles tournament. They won their first match over Tenino's Ally Vestal and Ximena Ontiveros, Tenino 6-0, 6-3, but were eventually knocked out of placing in the third round losing to La Salle's Hannah Singco / Isabella James 6-3, 6-0). Congratulations on a great season!

Girls set 1600m relay state record 3:59.00

Courtesy of Robyn Doloughan

Seniors Tessa Gilbert, Madison Rubright, AnnaBelle Schweiger, and Alyssa Zimmerman, and freshman Megan Rubright broke a 35-year old state record (and Freeman record) in the 1600m relay, becoming state champs with a time of 3:59.00.

Freshman Ysabella Panzeri takes a handoff from senior Alyssa Zimmerman. They were on the fourth place finishing 4 x 100 and 4 x 200 relay teams, which both set school records at the meet.

Junior Andrew McGill placed third in the 300 m hurdles with a time of 40.36. He also took 6th place in the high jump with a height of 6-00.

Lit Circle's book vs. movie day fun for the whole club

By Sydney Warrick
Staff Writer

This year, lit circle picked a great book to compare with the movie, The Secret Life Of Bees. Set in South Carolina in 1964, the story is the moving tale of Lily Owens a 14-year-old girl who is haunted by the memory of her late mother. To escape her lonely life and troubled relationship with her father, Lily flees with Rosaleen (her caregiver and only friend) to a South Carolina town that holds the secret to her mother's past. Taken in by the intelligent and independent Boatwright sisters, Lily finds solace in their mesmerizing world of bee-keeping, honey and the Black Madonna.

After the film was over, lit circle had a discussion about what they thought of the movie as to the book.

"It was good," sophomore Savannah Sousa said. "A little slow at some parts. It wasn't really my sort of read, but in the end, I liked it".

The movie was a hit with many of the club members.

"The movie was as good as the book, because the slow parts were sped up in the movie," Sousa explained.

Junior Trent Smith also shared his thoughts on the movie.

"It wasn't my favorite, but it had some good ones," Smith said. "I think it was better than the book but not something I'd watch on my own time. The characters didn't seem real."

Overall, there was mixed feelings about the book and movie.

Emily Henry's The Love That Split the World falls short

By Sydney Warrick
Staff Writer

Natalie's last summer in her small Kentucky hometown is off to a magical start until she starts seeing the "wrong things." For example, there's a preschool where the garden store should be. But then her whole town disappears for hours, fading away into rolling hills and grazing buffalo, and Nat knows something isn't right.

That's when she gets a visit from the kind but mysterious apparition she calls "Grandmother," who tells her: "You have three months to save him." The next night, under the stadium lights of the high school football field, she meets a beautiful boy named Beau, and it's as if time just stops and nothing exists. Except Natalie and Beau.

This book was very slow going, not a lot of detail about Natalie or any of the characters in the book.

I didn't really understand much of what was even happening in the plot, like what they were trying to accomplish. Nor did the book ever explain it, in the end, or ever what was happening to Natalie with all the light changing. The plot was a little out of control because it seemed there were too many things going on at once. I did like the relationship she had with Beau though, it was a little better than some of her relationships with the other characters. What kept me from following was just when the timing would change and you didn't really know how which world you were reading about at the moment.

If you like fantasy, mystery, and a bit of romance this should be good for you, my overall rating is 3 out of 5 stars. I won't argue that it wasn't a solid good book, it just was slow and not my type.

Same place, different name

By Kelly Wright
Editor

If you've been around the Freeman School District in the past few years during the summer time, you've most likely seen groups of sweaty middle and high-schoolers running around all over the place under the banner of APX Strength. And that will continue to reign true, except you won't see the letters A, P, and X around any time soon.

A program under the name of Complete Athlete will be taking its place as the new providers for Freeman's summertime strength and conditioning program. Other than the name, there won't be that much of a difference in the day-to-day exercising, as according to Complete Athlete's official website, completeathletespokane.com, the program consists of "movement training, injury reduction, linear and lateral speed development, foot speed and agility, explosive power development, proper wright training techniques." All things once offered at Freeman through APX.

"Essentially what it is a name change," Athletic Director Brian

Parisotto said. "APX has been shifting away from high school stuff and more to college and professional sports."

The one thing that can be noticed that differs from APX is that the "combine" portion of the program starts before school gets over, something that APX would do immediately after school ended.

The combine is on Wednesday, June 7th, which consists of max bench reps, 40-yard dash, standing long jump, and vertical jump.

Paternoster and Emtman head into post season with a clear mind

By Savannah Sousa
Staff Writer

Sophomores Trevor Paternoster and Kolby Emtman have taken the top seed on the boy's tennis team for doubles this season. Paternoster and Emtman were the 2nd doubles team last year, but have made quite the improvement this season. Paternoster first started tennis because his older sister Megan told him to sign up.

"I didn't really know how to play tennis but I was excited to start," Paternoster said.

Emtman decided to play tennis last year because Freeman didn't have a boys' soccer team. Emtman and Paternoster have been friends for years now. They really get each other and know just how make one another feel more relaxed in matches.

"I sometimes get mad when I miss a shot or just don't serve good, but Kolby always knows the right thing so say to make me feel good again," Paternoster said.

Coach Barb and Russ Mitchell say that Paternoster and Emtman are two that you never know what to expect from them. "With those two guys, you learn to never count them out of any point or match." Coach Barb and Russ Mitchel said.

The boys headed into districts feeling pretty good with the season they had had so far. They set a few goals and completed most of them. One goal in mind was to make it past regionals.

"I think we have a really good chance at making it to regionals, it will take some work but we can do it," Emtman says.

Sadly, the boys lost in the semi-finals. But they completed another goal that would help them in the long run.

The boys wanted to beat Freeman's #1 doubles team of freshmen Owen Bryant and Daniel Gady in the district tournament if the opportunity presented itself.

Paternoster and Emtman did just that. The two doubles team went head to head in districts. The match was a consolation match and whoever lost went home. Paternoster and Emtman won the match 7-5, 6-4.

"Paternoster and Emtman were great competitors and they played honorably," Bryant said.

The boys continued on in the tournament but ended their season with a loss in the consolation semifinals.

It's not always first come, first served

By Kelly Wright
Editor

Well, at least not in sophomore Andy Simmerman's case.

"I just did tennis so I can get my footwork better for soccer," Simmerman said.

And a whole lot came out of just wanting to get better footwork. In Simmerman's first year of high school tennis, he placed eighth at the state tournament.

"It was a good experience," Simmerman said. "I did as well as I could."

Simmerman said that although he did decent at the state meet, he didn't have any real chance of winning the thing.

"If it goes well next year, I could get a better seed at regionals and do better at state," Simmerman said.

And there couldn't be any more truth to that statement. Since Simmerman was seeded eighth at state (due to his performance at regionals), Simmerman had to go up against Jack Katzman of University Prep, the eventual winner of the tourney. Enough about the tournament.

If you ever went to Freeman Middle School, you've probably noticed quite a few tennis balls hanging out on the cross country trail and the surrounding area. Someone should have to go get those right? Not exactly. Simmerman's only had to shag two tennis balls from the forest and the rest, well, just don't hit it over the fence and you should be fine.

Of all the things you could (key word, could) dislike about tennis, Simmerman said "when it's hot. Definitely."

Yeah, it sucks when it's hot out for anything (unless you're going swimming). It's one of the worst things about playing competitive sports. But one of the best things is that competition, and the relationships that result from it. Take into account Simmerman's relationship with Riverside transfer student from Spain, Joel Cladera-Garcia, who according to Simmerman ranked something like 900th nationally in Spain.

"We're pretty much like best friends," Simmerman said. "I've seen people cry after playing him."

They also share an avid interest in soccer, or "football" as they call it in Europe.

As a future interest, Simmerman doesn't see himself playing tennis outside of a recreational atmosphere.

Co-MVP McKabe Cottrell's senior year ends on a high note

By Mikayla Ward
Staff Writer

McKabe Cottrell has been playing baseball since he was four years old, and has played for the Freeman Scotties for the past six years. Cottrell is an outstanding first baseman and pitcher, throwing at speeds up to 87 mph. He is also a good teammate.

"McKabe is really good and doesn't act cocky," said senior Simon Rooney, who has been playing ball with Cottrell since 7th grade. "It's been fun to play on a team with him."

"He is very reliable on the field and gives the team confidence," senior Kaulin Freudenthal added.

For Cottrell one of his biggest supporters is his dad who "pushes me to do better everyday." He also appreciates the help from the coaches he has had over the years.

"The coaches have been amazing helping getting me to where I want to be," Cottrell said. "They have done a lot for me."

Now coming to an end of his high school career, Cottrell will play baseball for Gonzaga University next year.

"Baseball is a game of failure so when you succeed it makes it more enjoyable," Cottrell said. "You also have that brotherhood with your team which is unmatched."

Sumami takes on the game of softball with a desire to succeed

By Riley McLuskie
Staff Writer

Junior Sumiko Sumami is a foreign exchange student from Bolivia. She came to Freeman for this school year and is living with the Folsom's. Recently Sumami started playing softball for the JV team.

"In my country, we don't have softball and I wanted to try it out," Sumami said. She's never played softball before and she didn't know anything about the sport, but that didn't stop her.

"My goal for this season is to be the best in the game and learn to catch better," Sumami explained.

She plays right field and occasionally left field.

"She's trying her hardest even though she'd never heard about softball before she came to America," freshman Madi Duarte said of her fellow outfielder. "I know I couldn't do that."

Sumami says she has a very good relationship with all the girls on both the Varsity and JV team. She also has a good relationship with coaches Scott Carolan and Jessica Robb.

"Sumiko always has a smile on her face, and when she gets constructive criticism, she takes it in a good way," Robb said. "She wants to get better."

"The first day of practice she didn't even know if she was left- or right-handed, and now she can throw the ball all the way from right field to the pitcher's mound," freshman catcher Hailey Davis said.

Personally, I loved being on Sumami's team. She is such a happy person, and she tries her hardest in everything that she does. I will miss her on the team next year.

Sumami anxiously awaits her turn to bat at a game against Lakeside.
